

One Hundred and Forty-second Pennsylvania Volunteers, at their reunion at Gettysburg, Pa., September II, 1889, was to have in the family of each member of the regiment, who would subscribe for the same, a complete roster of the regiment, with a short history of its honorable service, including an account of our two reunions, believing that such a book will be treasured by our children, families and friends, when we shall have joined that great army of our comrades, who gave their lives for the Union and in suppressing the most gigantic rebellion recorded in history. The records of the War Department show that there were only two regiments in the service of the Union army whose percentage of losses sustained by reason of their participation in the battles for the Union will exceed those of the One Hundred and Forty-second Pennsylvania Volunteers. Nine hundred and thirty-five men and officers were enlisted. Eight hundred and eleven of them were killed, wounded and taken prisoners during their term of service, which commenced in August, 1862, and ended when peace was declared in the year 1865.
